Overseas Degree.

- Degree certificate.
- Personal Academic Certificate.
- Course plan and programmes (syllabus) stamped by university of origin.
- Where applicable, sworn declaration confirming that you have not also submitted the documents to the Ministry of Education to accredit the degree.
- Recognised Body Certificate that specifies that the university and the course studied are officially recognised and authorised. This document can be issued by the university of origin (signed by the rector or authorised body) or the Ministry of Education in the country of origin.

Incomplete overseas university studies.

- Personal Academic Certificate.
- Course plan and programmes (syllabus) stamped by university of origin.
- Recognised Body Certificate that specifies that the university and the course studied are officially recognised and authorised. This document can be issued by the university of origin (signed by the rector or authorised body) or the Ministry of Education in the country of origin.

To be considered in both cases.

If you are an applicant with overseas studies, all of the documents must be duly stamped by the university of origin, translated and legalised (except for the sworn statement, which only needs to be translated, where applicable, and stamped by the university of origin).

If you are an applicant from a country belonging to the European Union, it will not be necessary for the documents to be legalised.

Only documents in Spanish or English shall be accepted. A sworn translation and the certificate in the native language shall be required.

In order to be accepted as a student through this channel, the university must have recognised at least 30 ECTS credits.

If at least 30 ECTS credits have not been recognised, you must apply for accreditation of your secondary school qualifications at the UNED open university or at the Ministry of Education, depending on where you studied.
